

CROWDS GREET FR. COUGHLIN AT BASEBALL PARK

RADIO PRIEST SEES O'BRIEN HISTORY

At each of the Gaffney street windows, with plenty of others circulating along the street, stood a "radio priest" who, in the name of the radio, was prepared to give a "radio history" of the National Union for Social Justice.

YETS IN UNIFORMS

Most of the veterans wore their American Legion uniforms or the regalia of the V. F. W. or the Spanish War Veterans, or other organizations.

But there was many a man who had donned his wartime khaki or blue in lieu of any organization regalia.

All of the veterans wore white and blue beretards on their left arms to identify themselves as veterans.

So huge was the crowd that the entire grandstand was filled, and a 10-15 foot wall of people stood in front of the grandstand.

Buses were from everywhere in New England, but no more than a few from the north.

There came so fast they could hardly be counted as they came, and the police were trying to keep them from blocking the street.

CANDIDATES CHIEF

The stand for the speakers was built directly over the grandstand, and the entire directly above the grandstand.

There were two battalions of American Legion speakers, each with a band, and they stood in the middle of the street, and the National Union committee men, who were all dressed in uniform, were in the front of the crowd.

It didn't matter whether it was just a rain meeting or a barn party or whatever, the speakers were all dressed in uniform, and the crowd was all dressed in uniform.

Four O'Brien's name brought the loudest cheers, time after time. It was a good way to keep them in a chilly, breezy area, but it wasn't necessary for the crowd to find ways to keep them warm.

His spontaneous enthusiasm did not stop them.

What caught the eyes of everyone coming into the vast open-air auditorium was a huge photographic reproduction of a picture of the idol of the crowd, Father Coughlin.

It was set up directly in front of the clock in the right field bleacher section, but it was in his very center of the radio speaker's face.

As a matter of fact, the picture must have been at least 50 by 50 feet, one of the largest pictures in the entire gallery.

The picture was flanked by two American flags.

During the afternoon Father Coughlin, in his own words, stood on the floor of the hall, overlooking the intersection of Commercial and State streets, with Copay square, crowded with thousands of people.

Timed in advance of the coming of President Roosevelt, he said, on October 21, the Rev. Coughlin said that the value of the state capital was seen as a turning point in the history of the state capital in Massachusetts.

In an interview given at the time, the radio priest declared that O'Brien would win the senatorial election and that Governor Curley would finish a bad third in the election.

"He has a good chance to beat Curley," he was asked.

"He has not a good chance, he has a sure chance," the priest replied.

LODGE SECOND

In reply to a further question as to whether he thought Curley or Representative Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., the Republican, would win, the priest said:

"Curley will finish third, it is all he can do."

The speaker was also of the opinion that Leland T. Lincoln would win for President, while Curley would finish a bad third in the election.

"The Rev. Coughlin highly disapproved of the National Union for Social Justice, he said, in Massachusetts in March.

On the contrary, he said, the Massachusetts was the leader under the new three months, and he was added, it with the leader under the new three months.

"Who should be waste all his time coming to Boston? He has been badly advised. It is just the same as my going down to New England."

He indicated that he will call on Congressman William C. Cullen Jr., of Lynn, to clear up the political position in regard to the New Deal, at first for said: "I believe this is a real Democrat."

But he immediately turned his attention to the fact that he was informed that Congressman Cullen is charging to the 18th district of the National Union for Social Justice, and he was supporting the Roosevelt Administration.

Then he said: "I would not want to discuss what I have said."

Crossley Vote Poll Shows Landon Strength Increasing

By ARCHIBALD M. CROSSLEY Director of the Crossley National Poll (Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

New York, Oct. 12.—Shifts of a point or so in at least ten of the more evenly-divided states, as reflected in today's compilation of the latest figures of the Crossley poll of voter-opinion, are so near to the very heart of the election situation that they deserve special attention.

Over the week-end, when the Crossley poll completed its tabulation of the remainder of the states, the vote for the week, Governor Landon was close to the top of the bill.

The poll revealed he had accumulated a sufficient lead in enough states to guarantee him a victory, and that he had secured 19 of the 30 states, and that he had secured 19 of the 30 states, and that he had secured 19 of the 30 states.

When asked if he had any comment to make on the recent results, the Rev. Coughlin said: "I understand he was helping Roosevelt. Birds of a feather flock together. You never find doves co-mingling with crows."

"If President Roosevelt kept his hands off Congress," the priest said, "we would not be in the congressional field at all. He has not only picked congressional candidates in New York but he has picked the Lehman run for governor."

HART OF RENNING

He said that the President ran against his party in New York when he backed McKee, the Russian candidate for mayor.

"He has a habit of running things down to dog catcher," he said.

According to the Rev. Coughlin, President Roosevelt is not a "full-fledged Communist."

"He would be able to try to classify him with Cardinal MacMahon, who is an atheist," he continued. "He is a priest, an atheist. It would be silly to classify him with Stalin or Lenin, who is a communist."

As an illustration, he said that Roosevelt would probably be in the fire, to object if he were proposed for the presidency in Hyde Park with the people.

In the present political situation, the speaker said there are three divisions—Roosevelt, Old Deal, and Social Justice.

Secretary Kells, he said, is "a communist, not a priest."

Certainly, he pointed out, they are not different. Roosevelt is a communist, not a priest.

Pneumonia Shown On Increase Here

Pneumonia continues to be the most common disease in the state, according to the latest report from the Massachusetts Department of Health.

The report, which was issued last week, shows that the number of cases of pneumonia in the state has increased by 10 percent since the same time last year.

The increase is attributed to the fact that the weather has been unusually cold and wet, and that the number of people who have been in the hospitals has increased.

The report also shows that the number of deaths from pneumonia has increased by 10 percent since the same time last year.

LANDON GIVEN TOWNSEND OVER DEAL

(Special to American Newspapers, Inc.)

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, in a statement, today had strongly urged his followers to vote for Alfred M. Landon in those states where William Leuke was unable to place his name on the ballot for the November 8 election.

Dr. Townsend in his statement said:

"I consider a vote for Mr. Roosevelt a vote against the national recovery plan bearing my name. Mr. Leuke has been unable to file his candidacy in California, Florida, Oklahoma, Nevada, Kansas, New Jersey, North Carolina, West Virginia, and Maryland."

"In these states it is urgent that we who wish the Townsend national recovery plan enacted during the next administration vote for Mr. Landon in those states where Mr. Leuke was unable to file."

Political dopsters pointed out that in California, Florida and Oklahoma particularly Dr. Townsend's statement would in every probability throw the presidential vote to Mr. Landon.

According to the Literary Digest poll Landon leads California by a narrow margin of 6000 votes, the count being Landon 60,800 to 54,000 for Roosevelt.

The Townsend vote in California is rated at well over one million. In Florida, Landon leads Roosevelt by 100,000 to 80,000.

Fr. Coughlin's Friend: Priest Boosts O'Brien Chance

(Special to American Newspapers, Inc.)

The campaign of Thomas C. O'Brien, former district attorney of Suffolk County, for election to the U. S. Senate, took a new surge today as a result of the Boston visit of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin.

O'Brien has the endorsement of Father Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice both for vice-president and U. S. Senator, and in the Supreme Court he has won the right to have the Union Party designation after his name on the November ballot, despite opposition of the Democratic State Committee.

The Detroit radio priest predicted that the remainder of the campaign, in a conference which he had shortly after his arrival here with the man he calls "our own Tommy Charles O'Brien."

Father Coughlin also supplied some sage advice for the conduct of the remainder of the campaign, in a conference which he had shortly after his arrival here with the man he calls "our own Tommy Charles O'Brien."

The truth of the reports, that no man is closer to Father Coughlin than O'Brien, was confirmed by the fact that they met and discussed the closing stages of the campaign.

The famous orator always refers to his Boston candidate affectionately as "our own Tommy Charles O'Brien," and his greeting upon arriving in Boston, was of the warmest kind.

O'Brien has been making an energetic campaign on the stump and over the air, but plans call for

PARADE, SPORTS MARK HOLIDAY IN BOSTON

(Special to American Newspapers, Inc.)

Parades, memorial exercises and many outdoor events marked the celebration of Columbus Day in Boston and throughout the state today.

Boston's official celebration took place at the Parkman bandstand on the Common, this afternoon, with representatives of Spain, Italy and South American countries being greeted by city officials.

22 NATIONS REPRESENTED

State Deputy Patrick J. Moynihan of the Knights of Columbus delivered the principal address. Twenty-two nations of North, South and Central America were represented in the exercises.

Numerous memorial masses were held for departed members of the Knights of Columbus this morning, and members of the organization took leading parts in ceremonies held in observance of the historic day.

NORTH END PARADE

The North End Post American Legion, sponsored the city's official holiday parade from North End park, through downtown streets and returning to the starting point.

Lowell, celebrating its centennial, combined the climax of that feat with celebration of Columbus Day. The state's greatest parade was held there, with 2000 persons in the line of march.

Downtown stores, with few exceptions, were open to shoppers from 10 to 5 P. M.

STEAL USED CAR

Thieves broke into a Columbia road, Duxbury, garage, and departed with a used car which was on display.

N. Y. Voters Up 24 Pct.

New York, Oct. 12 (U.S.)—For the first time in the history of the New York State election, the number of voters who have voted in the past four years has increased by 24 percent.

The increase is attributed to the fact that the weather has been unusually cold and wet, and that the number of people who have been in the hospitals has increased.

Bettina Eshleman Weds Today In Milton Church Ceremony

By BETTY ALDEN

STRANGE AS IT MAY SEEM, Bettina Eshleman must have some sort of affinity with Columbus. . . Several of the most important events in her life took place on Columbus Day. . .

A year ago today her engagement to Franklin Reece, Jr., was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Eshleman of Milton. . . and four years ago today she was presented to society at a large tea dance at the Milton Club. . .

Perhaps it all started when her parents chose October 12 as the date of their wedding, and it has remained ever since a day of celebration in the Eshleman family. . .

This Columbus Day, is, of course, the most important of all in Bettina's life. . . for it is her wedding day. . . At a fashionable late afternoon ceremony in St. Michael's in Milton she and Franklin (Hunny) are being married and then they greet all their friends and their families' friends, at the reception at the Milton Club. . .

Mr. Eshleman, a very handsome and genial gentleman, is escorting his diminutive black-haired daughter to the altar where Rev. Vincent Leroy Bennett is performing the ceremony. . .

BETTINA ESHLEMAN

The bride's dark curls are to be confined under a Juliet cap of pearls from which her long tulle veil falls in graceful folds over her long train. . . Her gown is of ivory brocade and her flowers calla lilies. . .

Few girls have the opportunity to be maid of honor before making their debut, but Annabel Killy Eshleman, who still lacks three years of attaining debutante age, is serving her sister as maid of honor in today's bridal procession. . . She is carrying a bouquet of copper and gold chrysanthemums with her gold morellock, made on the same style as the gowns of the eight older girls who are bridesmaids. . .

Sub-Deb Sister Attends Bride

MRS. KARL ADAMS, Jr. (Harette Sturge), of Chestnut Hill, who gave a supper party for all the attendants Friday evening, is one of the bridesmaids. . . the others are Elizabeth Reece, who engaged to James Edwin Gardner, Jr., has just been announced. . . Cynthia Reece, a sub-deb sister of the bridegroom. . . Katherine Peabody and Laura Dodge of Milton, Helen P. Smith of Providence, Madeline Powers of Boston and Medford and Edith Saboury of Weston. . .

They are carrying bouquets of autumn shades of chrysanthemums in bond with their copper morellock. . . John B. Reece, the bridegroom's brother, is serving as best man and James E. Gardner, Jr., of New York, his future brother-in-law, is one of the best men. . . The others are Samuel S. Drury, Jr., John Loring Savage, and Walter Kellogg, all of New York; Henry Salmonstad and R. Franklin Eshleman of Milton; E. Thayer Dizon of Beverly Farms; T. Ferguson Locke of Boston; Richard A. Dow of Cambridge and George T. Keyes of Gorton. . .

Following their wedding trip the bridal couple will make their home in Pine Grove, Chestnut Hill, just a block or so away from Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Reece, the bridegroom's parents. . .

The bride attended Milton Academy and is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. . . Mr. Reece graduated from Harvard in 1903 and is now in charge of the Institute of the 1770. Owl, the Varsity Club and Harvard Club of Boston. . .

Mr. and Mrs. W. Rodman Peabody of Milton entertained the bride party and a few out of town friends at a large luncheon this noon just preceding the wedding. . .

Plan Wedding in St. Louis

WE HEAR THAT WILLIAM TAPPAN KING has been hunting in Concord for a residence in which he and his bride-to-be can settle down after their marriage, which has been tentatively planned for early in the New Year. . . Bill's engagement to Mrs. Charles Mulliken (Elizabeth Mauran) of Dublin, N. H., and St. Louis, was announced two weeks ago. . . the wedding is to take place in St. Louis. . . The bridegroom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tarrant Putnam King of Milton. . .

The David Cheevers, Jr. (Ellen Pierce) had a "home warming" party Saturday afternoon from 5 to 7 at their new home in Medford. . . In another week, the 29th, he is exact, Ellen and David will celebrate their second wedding anniversary. . . Ellen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Pierce of Milton. . .

Alfred Himmelsbach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George A. Himmelsbach, was married Saturday afternoon in the Chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, to Dr. Robert McVickar Agnew of Montclair, New Jersey. . . The wedding, which was very informal, was followed by a wedding breakfast at the St. Regis Hotel. . .

The bride, whose parents live in Buffalo, is well known to many Bostonians who knew her when she was a student at Smith College and also when she was shopping director in the Paris and New York offices of the Holland American Line. . . She and Dr. Agnew have sailed for a honeymoon in Bermuda after which they will reside in Montclair. . .

The Committee for the Home Care of Children With Heart Disease, under the auspices of the Massachusetts General Hospital, is sponsoring a concert at Symphony Hall, Sunday afternoon, October 26, in which Roland Hayes will be the guest artist. . .

Mrs. Edward Franklin Hand, the former Frances Poirier of Brookline, announces that a great many prominent Bostonians have already made reservations for the concert. . . Among them are Mrs. Robert Herrick, Mrs. Alfred Torrey, Miss Lucy Lowell, Mrs. Richard M. Sullivan, Mrs. John Chandler, Mrs. Edward E. Nash, Mrs. Charles A. Newbold, Mrs. William L. Landon, Mrs. Robert G. Stone, Miss Helen Thomas, Mrs. W. O. Paine, Mrs. George L. Talley, Mrs. Charles K. Cabot and Mrs. Henry Bryant.

RENEE VAN NYDECK SCHANCK

MARIE THERESE PALMER

ONE OF THE NORTH SHORE'S most brilliant society events of the Fall season took place on Saturday night when the Harriet Palmers of Manchester and Groove Point, Michigan, entertained at a supper dance for their daughter, Marie Therese Palmer, and Renee Van Nydeck Schanck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Schanck of New York and Manchester. Miss Palmer is shown in the silver lame gown she wore at the dance, while Miss Schanck is shown wearing an ice blue and silver lame gown.

By MARGUERITE DOWNEY

IN A SETTING of chrysanthemums, gladioli and palms, Marian Kenneally of Medford became Mrs. William Barker at a 10 o'clock ceremony this morning in the Immaculate Conception Church in Malden.

Manager Richard T. Neagle officiated at the wedding which was followed by a reception and breakfast at the Mayfair restaurant Hotel. The bride, dressed in white satin and veil of tulle, was attended by her six sisters, Kathryn, groomed in coronation blue velvet with matching hair and carrying a bouquet of red chrysanthemums, acted as maid of honor. Her youngest sister, Mildred, was flower girl. Her debutante velvet frock trimmed with light blue tulle and a basket of sweet peas completed her costume. . . Four more sisters, attired in picturesque gowns of white tulle and maroon velvet, preceded her afterward. Ann Grace, Rosalie and Louise. For flowers they carried old-fashioned bouquets of autumn blooms. . .

Mr. Barker's brother, James, was best man and usher included T. Robert Kenneally, brother of the bride, John L. Barker, brother of the groom and Roland T. Carter of Winchester. . .

Mrs. Philip H. Kenneally headed the reception line at the breakfast. . . her sister-in-law velvet gown completed with accessories of the same tone and Mrs. Harold Maxwell. . . the former Eleanor Hackett. . . topped her burgundy velvet outfit with a corsage of cat-paw. . .

Following a prolonged wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Barker will make their home in Malden. . .

Mrs. Barker, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Kenneally of Medford, was graduated from Girls Catholic High School. . .

Gilluly-Keene Ceremony . . . Also joining the ranks of holiday brides is Anna Keane, daughter of John Keane of East Boston, who exchanged wedding vows with Richard Gilluly at an afternoon ceremony in the Star of the Sea Church at 4 o'clock. . .

For her wedding, the bride wears white satin and a shoulder-length veil of tulle which falls from a coronet of seed pearls. Mary Duffy of Quincy, wearing a gown of sapphire blue velvet with accessories of silver, is her only attendant. . .

Patrick J. Gilluly of Jamaica Plain leads the list of sisters which include three of the bride's nieces, Matthew, William and Walter Keene. Another brother of the bride, John Keane, Jr., acted as best man. . .

After a reception at the Winchester Arms, the bridal couple left for a motor trip to Chicago. They will be home in East Boston on the first of November. . .

Reign of Red Terrorism:

How Communists Wrecked Industries in Spain

The facts leading up to the present amazing situation in Spain are of particular interest to the American people.

Specifically they show what happens in a country once it falls into the clutches of Reds.

Based on the "Program" of Spanish democracy, Largo Caballero and his Socialist party quickly threw off the mask and established a "Popular Front" government.

Condemned by Communists and anarchists they suppressed all opposition, despite the moderate president, Alcalá Zamora, and elected the Reddish Azaña to his post.

They began a reign of terror in which hundreds of churches have been burned, thousands of citizens assassinated and the country lashed with the utmost purpose of establishing a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

It was this that the army resisted and civil war began.

What has this to do with us?

Only that the same situation might well develop here should the same elements, in some form or another, be permitted to enter the United States as in Spain and France, be permitted to get the upper hand.

BY A FORMER SPANISH OFFICIAL WHO IS NOW IN SPAIN

When his identity revealed, the members of his immediate family and all of their relatives would probably be assassinated.

At the end of 1935, the dissolution of the second Republican parliament was decreed, and new parliamentary elections were called for February 16, 1936.

The Socialist party succeeded in the formation of an electoral front combining all the Leftist elements of the country and other parties in a long enough coalition to secure the necessary majority.

The front consisted of the Republican Left parties, the Socialists, the Communists and the Anarchists, together with the League and the Autonomous parties.

The purposes of the Popular Front, as the Union was named, were fairly moderate, according to the electoral platform broadcast at the election.

The elections gave a slight majority of seats to the Popular Front, though it is a minority which, taking the country as a whole, has a large enough majority.

Some 300,000 votes more than the opposition, this result being due to the different size of the constituencies.

The election act, drafted by the Socialists at the beginning of the year, gave a large number of seats per number of votes, to the constituencies.

From this it can be seen that the result of the election was a triumph for the Socialists.

As soon as the news of the electoral victory was known, Socialists and Communists began to start to exterminate the "Right."

This "Right" as they called it, was the group of people who were in the streets headed by Red flags and banners.

REDS' FORCES BLOCK REELS FROM MADRID

Madrid, Oct. 12 (AP)—Strong forces of government soldiers, holding stubbornly to maintain positions, repulsed insurgents attempting to enter the city from the road between San Martin de Valdecarlos and Madrid.

A few miles north, additional divisions of Socialist militiamen, based around Robledo de Chavela, were awaiting the arrival of the Fascist force which forced them from Gredos yesterday.

The heavy shelling in the wintery wind, relief units poured into the government positions in the Sierra de Guadarrama Mountains.

Each man wore a raincoat over his overalls.

The haggard warriors attempting to break the surging Fascist advance struck on at insurgent columns around Navalcarlos, Plasencia, Valdemadueña, and Casa del Guadalupe.

Rebel Armies Wait Order To Launch Madrid Drive

Burgos, Oct. 12 (AP)—Manned in a solid line, the mountainous country west of Madrid, the rebel troops looked about for the order to march on the capital.

Fascist concentrations, especially heavy on the Arriba and Toledo fronts, expected their commanders to see El Escorial and Navalcarlos as immediate objectives in the forthcoming advance.

The "street pressure" created by the extreme parties of the popular front, that is, Socialists, Communists and anarchists, was directed on one hand to crush all opposition coming from right quarters, and on the other hand, to force the government forward on their revolutionary aims.

The milder forms of "street pressure" consisted of mass demonstrations in the streets and strikes of all sorts.

The violent "street pressure" was manifested in the burning of churches and political newspapers and clubs, accompanied by assault on individuals for religious or political reasons.

Their immediate objective was to keep the country in a constant state of confusion and disorder.

Other forms of "street pressure" were regular holdups of tourists and motorists, irrespective of nationality, who were stopped by bands of Socialists and Communists on the Spanish highways and asked to contribute to the "revolutionary fund."

The result of this was that after these partial elections, the Popular Front majority was considerably increased, and the parties of the opposition proportionately weakened.

Then came the turn of the popular front, who were considered to be too moderate.

POPE CONTRACTS COLD; VATICAN ALARMED

By FRANK GERVASI (Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

Vatican City, Oct. 12—New alarm over the health of aged Pope Pius XI arose here when it was revealed that he had contracted a head cold which threatens to aggravate his other ailments. The Pope is nearly 80 years old.

Despite his weakened state, the Pontiff received several high functions of the church in private audience and later blessed 3000 workers of the Catholic Action Society who were making a pilgrimage to Pompeii.

Pope Pius XI was noted with concern that in a hoarse voice which was almost a nasal sound.

The Pope was carried from his private apartment in a closed motor car, he descended to the audience chamber in his private elevator and then was borne to the chamber in another closed chair.

Pope Pius XI was believed to have developed from a chill contracted before he left his summer palace at Castel Gandolfo.

Typhoon Dead 310, Hundreds Missing

Manila, Oct. 12 (AP)—One of the worst typhoons ever to strike the Philippines had caused at least 310 deaths and left hundreds unaccounted for as it spread destruction into additional areas tonight.

...TO OVERLOOK THE FACT THAT Gilmore Dobie and Glenn Scobie Warner are elderly primitives whose brains are the mold of football date back to the time when it was not considered improper for a college coach to take his varsity around in moving from job to job, they have never matched wits against each other until now when B. At the end of the last week end, I noticed a photo enlargement in the library archives where Dartmouth players in the 1940s, stuffed with cotton for extra padding, wore uniforms and dates of each memorable game. The picture is a yellowing record of the 1946 season, the one in which the players, clad in a dark blue jersey and khaki pants and haypads were defeated by the Yale team in a human haystack football game. It was a wild clash between primitive football and a sample of modern football.

With a pump, he began to tinker with tools. When the team's center was picked for his porky personality, the day's duty to flip the ball backward from his knees and tie up as much space between his legs as possible. He was just an oversized robot and a general, who had no social standing among his teammates. He sat at the training table. The day's training for the day usually consisted of the team's general, who was an instant big fan of the team's mascot, took full responsibility for the team's progress. Having completed his part, the center then put on his blueberry person and stood in front of the team's mascot.

ON MONDAY, TWENTY YEARS GLENN'S JUNIOR, it was an old-fashioned party, rather than a great one. The occasion was a party, remarkable and for detail a strange one, because the persuasion was with kids. Like a child, he was not aware of failures in late years before. He was not a person to be afraid of. But the last night of the meeting, perfect in itself, when he had been in the room, he had sometimes making his point to the work which seems more comical for his understanding expression.

INITIAL CLASH FOR COACHES

[illegible][illegible][illegible]

The story of today's battle between Boston College's football coach and Temple's famous mentor, will be told in tomorrow's Boston Evening American sports section by L. B. "Pat" Hanley, head coach of Boston University. Don't fail to read it.

"IT IS GOING to be a sad day for Boston College and Gil Dobie," Pop Warner, coach of Temple, warns John P. Curley, B. C. athletic director, as they met here last night when Warner arrived with Temple for the game with the Eagles at Fenway Park this afternoon. At right is Earl R. Neomans, director of athletics at Temple.

Gives Views on Game

By WALTER KILEY

A happy medium between the radical, wide-open offense of the Southwest and the far more conservative ground attack of the East and northern sections of the country, provide the ideal in football, states Glenn Sobeys. "Pop" Warner, 65-year-old dean of the nation's college football coaches, whose fine Temple team is playing Boston College at Fenway Park this afternoon.

"There is a wide divergence of opinion between the two schools of thought," this play-making genius of the gridiron claims.

"One believes in taking chances. The other in playing safe. The East tends towards too much conservatism. The Southwest overdoes the passing game.

"My own thought is that each has its own proper value when used in the right spots. Colleges of the Southwest might achieve a great deal more success if they mixed up running plays more frequently with passes.

PASSING HAS ITS PLACE

"There are many games won by passing. But there are many lost too. Passes can prove boomerangs when least expected as witness Saturday's games.

"Holy Cross intercepted a pass and scored the only touchdown of the game to beat Dartmouth. Fordham was soundly outplayed by Southern Methodist, a great exponent of the open game. Yet Fordham intercepted a pass and pulled out the victory with the consistent touchdown run.

"On the other hand a fine Pittsburgh team beat Ohio State, another great outfit, without once taking to the air. Pitt found its running attack functioning well. It did right in refusing to take chances through the air. Pitt won by

Warner's explanation of the general superiority of Southern and West Coast teams by comparison with Eastern eleven, sounds like a good one. It is a pity that the Eastern eleven is not better coached by other

"There are so many colleges in the East that good material is divided. Each college gets a good player now and then. But there are only a few big colleges in the West and a few in the South and Southwest. So that each of them manage to get a pretty fair squad each season."
